DEDICATION

Z. J. B. SCHOEN
O.D., D.O.S., Ph.D.

Z. John Bruce Schoen was born in Buffalo, New York, May 16, 1909. His father was an Optometrist who had one of the largest professional practices in the state.

Doctor Schoen graduated from Ohio State in 1932, and continued his studies at the University of Buffalo to receive an M.A. in psychology in 1934. A DuPont Research Fellowship at the University led to a Ph.D. in psychology in 1937. He received honorary D.O.S. degrees from Monroe College of Science in Toronto, Canada, in 1933, Northern Illinois College of Optometry in 1936, and Chicago College of Optometry in 1951.

He had a private practice in Buffalo, New York from 1932 to 1946, in which he specialized in child refractions and problem cases. From 1946 to 1949 he was associate director of the general and night vision facility at the United States Naval Medical Research Laboratory in New London, Connecticut, where he was superintendent of the eye Clinic at the Naval hospital and did a visual survey of the personnel at the submarine base. In 1949 he became co-chairman of the Optometry department and director of the division of graduate studies at Chicago College of Optometry.

He has done considerable research on ocular dominance, night vision, depth of focus of the eye, and self-induced ocular pain. In 1936 he was cited by the American Journal of Optometry as the originator of the chronometric technique for measurement of ocular imbalances.

He turned down offers to establish a Myopia Control Clinic at Annapolis, and other research projects, to come to Chicago College of Optometry for the specific purpose of teaching. He was at one time offered the directorship of the Ohio State Optometry School, but during that phase of his career considered it more important to continue his practice than to go into academic life.

He belongs to Epsilon Psi Epsilon fraternity at Ohio State and is a life member of Mu Sigma Pi and Tomb and Key.

From the PRESIDENT

To the graduates of June, 1953, I extend warmest congratulations upon this happy occasion. You have successfully completed your formal optometric education, and are well on the way to achieving the goals for which you have been preparing these past years.

I have faith that each of you WILL achieve these goals. As you leave C.C.O., remember that you take with you our best wishes for a future that is replete with happiness and success. We at the college stand ready and willing to assist you in any way that we can.

Although you are leaving college, do not forget that optometry is a profession that lends itself to further study. Keep abreast of new developments. By being aware of new trends, you are furthering knowledge of the profession to others as well as to yourself.

Optometry is continually delving into new fields of visual care. Programs of research are being conducted in child vision, motorist or highway vision, industrial vision, telescopic lenses for the near blind, and contact lenses.

Yet, most important of all, it is the future of the profession itself with which you must be concerned. It remains for YOU to spread the word—to use every available medium and opportunity to disseminate information to the general public about your profession. Take advantage of every opportunity that comes your way. Talk about latest strides in child vision and school programs, about motorist or highway vision and improved street lighting, about industrial vision and the widespread use of safety lenses. Discuss contact lenses and telescopic spectacles for the near blind. Let the public know that optometry has been the actor, director, and producer in these performances, that optometry has been behind the scenes in every one of these accomplishments!

So much can be done to publicize the field. The challenge is yours, take hold of it, study it, what can you do with it? The ball is in your hands now, Doctor! How fast, and how far can you travel with it? Good Luck!

From the DEAN

EUGENE FREEMAN
O.D., Ph.D.

A vocation evolves into a profession when those members of the vocation who are both competent and scrupulous band together to form a central organization, the prime purpose of which is to afford a guarantee to the public that anyone who is a member of the association has accepted the ideals and responsibilities of professionalism.

The technical knowledge and skill of the professions are so highly specialized that the layman is rarely able to evaluate the quality of the professional services which he purchases. He is not only forced to reserve his own judgement until after the work of the professional man has been completed, but even then he is frequently still unable to make an informed and intelligent evaluation.

The professions are accepted by society because they are founded on trust, instead of the law of caveat emptor. From this point of view, the professions are essentially those vocations which have evolved beyond the culture of claw and fang into a civilized community guided by the Golden Rule.

The point of view expressed above can be summarized for working purposes in a very simple statement: a profession is an honored and skilled ethical vocation. While this statement is admittedly too broad to serve as a precise logical definition, it approaches closer to the essence of the term, profession than many of the definitions which have been proposed formally for the term.

Our own profession of optometry has clearly evolved beyond the development of special skills, beyond the development of a high minded and humane code of ethics, and is achieving public recognition as an honorific profession.

Over 50 years of devoted public service, with continuously widening horizons of functions and public responsibilities, and a corresponding elevation in educational and professional standards have been required to bring our own profession of optometry to its present full-fledged maturity.

NEXT STOP

"A body at rest tends to remain at rest, while a body in motion tends to remain in motion."

Probably no statement could better describe the Class of 1953 as it alternately dragged its feet against the thrust of academic acceleration, then careened madly down the warpath during the "class meeting" period, and screeched around the sharp corners of curriculum changes.

Some climbed aboard for a sight-seeing trip, while others carefully noted the sign of destination and despite deflated tires and detours had their tickets regularly punched.

As we approach the terminal, each one is scrambling to gather the educational souvenirs he picked up along the way, wondering what he will find waiting as he disembarks—army trucks, green pastures, insecurity—surely one is waiting for all who recognize him: opportunity.

As a class we wish every member a continued pleasant journey.

—W.L.

THE YEAR

The 1952-53 school year has been quite a year. Internationally, the Korean war is still in progress and the solution is no nearer than at the inception of the conflict. Nationally, Eisenhower was elected President and the people seem a little more pleased with him than with Truman. In the state we have a new governor, Stratton, and the city of Chicago is, as it has been for years, making feeble and unsuccessful attempts to reduce crime, graft and corruption. C.C.O. has weathered a dormitory fire, a shooting in a bar across from the Clinic, and has undertaken plans to move the school to a different part of the city.

But the life of a student here during the past year has been the same as student life everywhere. Intensive attention has been the reward for professors with something to say, while unenlightened arguments and the murmur of slow, steady breathing has been the response to others. The students have gripped alternately about too much and not enough work to do. Outside of school, the usual extra curricular activities—dances, fraternity functions, sports—have been dutifully pursued. The perennial complaint of lack of money has been heard more or less constantly. Yes, the student's life here is much the same as elsewhere.

The only differences in the lives of C.C.O. students were due to the impact of the personalities of the instructors, and of the students themselves. The instructors have tried to the best of their ability to teach us what they know about this specialized field, and at the same time they have, knowingly or not, tried to indoctrinate and impress on us the high standards of ethics and morals of our profession. Whether they have succeeded or failed will be evidenced a few years hence.

For the Senior class the end of student life is in sight. The years spent here are memorable ones. Two-thirds of the class is now married, and parenthood seems to be the rule rather than the exception. As this class has been composed of men and women from most of the states, so it will disperse once again all over the land. But these men will be leaving with more than books and memories; they will have something more concrete in their possession: the knowledge, ability and confidence in themselves to succeed in their profession.

Tomb and Key is the honorary scholastic fraternity of Chicago College of Optometry. It was founded "for the promotion of the moral and social culture of its members, devotion to the cultivation of the intellect, mutual assistance in the honorable labors and aspirations of life, and all other objects worthy of the highest aim and purpose of associated effort. Especially shall the objects be the promotion of learning in the field of Optometry and the recognition of the conscientious and professional conduct of its members therein."

Mu Sigma Pi was founded as a professional fraternity in 1933, and Beta Chapter was formed at Chicago College of Optometry in March of 1950. The aims of the fraternity are to promote those ideals which will result in a higher standard for Optometry, to form a closer professional and social union of the undergraduates, and to foster and maintain a spirit of mutual aid and support.

Well-known members include J. C. Copeland, O.D.; Eugene Freeman, Ph.D., O.D.; and I. B. Borish, O.D.

The factors which brought about the formation of the first professional fraternity are not well known, but by 1870 professional schools were being established by several universities, and with them fraternities were founded which restricted membership to those students pursuing such professional courses. The organizations became known as professional fraternities to distinguish them from general, honorary scholarship and social fraternities. Omega Delta is a professional fraternity, was founded on January 23, 1917, at Northern Illinois College of Optometry, and was the first in the field of Optometry.

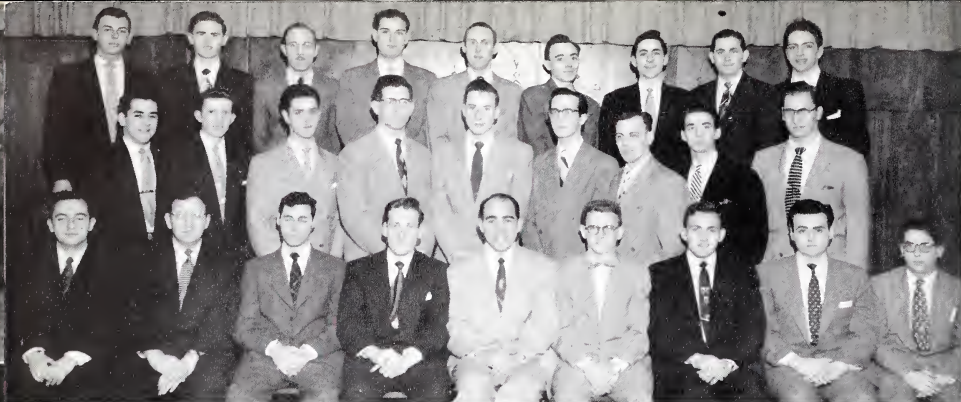

Because these fraternities designated themselves by various combinations of Greek letters, they are now known as Greek letter fraternities, and have become an integral part of the American system of higher education. The name, "Omega Delta", was chosen from the Greek so that the first letter of each word would coincide with the "O.D." degree of Doctor of Optometry.

Omega Delta was founded to bring about closer bonds between the students; to encourage scholarship; to promote closer affiliation between the optometric world and students of optometry; and to foster higher ideals and standards of professional ethics.

Omega Delta has eleven undergraduate chapters, together with Alumni chapters of the various states; thus it is foremost in being not only the oldest optometric fraternity, but the largest as well.

The professional fraternity should not be considered as a fraternity which serves its members only during their undergraduate years. Indeed, one of the most distinctive and valuable services of the professional fraternity is that it provides a life-long association with men who are engaged in the same field of endeavor.

Remember, a student is an undergraduate for only a few years, but he is an alumnus for life.

This fraternity was founded in the Executive Room of Earl Hall at the Columbia University School of Optometry October 12, 1919, by Alexander J. Broder, Abraham L. Graubart, and Daniel D. Weiss. Today there are chapters at every Optometry College in the United States with a total membership of 1000. The Iota chapter was formed at Chicago College of Optometry December 12, 1948.

High scholastic standards are emphasized, and to encourage the members of the profession to strive for higher attainments Omega Epsilon Phi has established several awards. These are the Omega Epsilon Phi award, first given to Doctor William Feinbloom for his work on the telescopic spectacle; the Andrew J. Cross Memorial Prize; the L. A. Farmer award; and the Joseph Scanlon award. The Iota Chapter award is given to a member of the graduating class who has performed outstanding service to the school and to his class regardless of fraternity affiliation.

Omega Epsilon Phi numbers in its ranks such well-known men as: Andrew J. Cross, D.O.S.; James P. C. Southall, M.A.; Frederick A. Woll, Ph.D.; Charles F. Prentice, M.E.; and Charles Sheard, Ph.D. The faculty members include M. L. Abram, L.L.B., D.O.S.; Eugene Freeman, Ph.D., O.D.; E. R. Tennant, O.D., D.O.S.; Edward R. Tobiasz, O.D., D.O.S.; H.S. Phi Theta Upsilon was founded on a non-sectarian basis in 1925. The Zeta chapter at Chicago College of Optometry has a program consisting of two main parts, academic and social. It attempts to advance the profession's scholarship and leadership, and the educational and professional advancement committee is constantly active. Awards for scholarship and leadership, and service and athletic awards are presented to those fraternity members of the graduating class who have excelled in their endeavors.

Among the highlights of the social calendar are traditional functions such as the All-School Dance and a spring picnic. There are numerous parties and the fraternity also sponsors intra-mural athletic teams—basketball, softball, golf, and bowling.

Its members include professional men from each of the 48 states, Canada, Mexico, and South America. Zeta Chapter maintains a department of Alumni Affairs which helps coordinate activities of the Alumni in various parts of the world.

Eyes Right, the official undergraduate publication of the Chicago College of Optometry, is a member of the Associated Collegiate Press. It is published periodically, and its policy is to enhance the profession and to report all news affecting the students, faculty, and administration of C.C.O. It serves as a medium of expression for important Optometric topics. It includes in its circulation not only students and those associated with the school, but also alumni and other prominent men in the field. It therefore serves an accessory purpose in promoting better public relations for Optometry in general and Chicago College of Optometry in particular.

THE CLINIC

OPEN LETTER FROM THE CLINIC DIRECTOR

The last two years of your college life were spent, to a great part, in our clinic. No wonder then that the bonds of friendship to the clinic are strong. You came here as Juniors and waited nervously for your first patient, and as time went on knowledge and skill replaced those early experiences of confusion when examining your patients. It is our hope that our efforts in teaching you the art and science of Optometry have clarified your duty towards the patient and will help you to uphold the sanctity of our profession.

We trust that as you leave our College and enter your private practice, our teachings will guide you.

The clinic, though equipped with modern instruments for refraction, visual training and specialty branches of Optometry, is only what it is due to its staff. And it is the clinic staff, I feel, who has built our clinic within a few years to a leading center of eye care. All our gratitude goes out to such men as Dr. Junius Brodnax for his inspiring influence on students and his great skill in pathology and refraction; to Dr. Robert Sternberg, who so willingly spent hour after hour explaining and teaching and permitting the intern to observe his complete mastery of refraction, pathology, contact lenses and aniseikonia; to Dr. Joseph Shepherd who combined his unusual gift of teaching with his complete understanding of theory and practice; to Dr. Telesfor Tobolski for his fine clinical analysis and keen understanding of physical Optometry; to Dr. Herbert Brautman for his human understanding and devotion to his work; Dr. Raoul Sabatini for his outstanding work in visual training, his knowledge in dealing with child-problems; to Dr. Howard Walton who so readily gained the confidence of his students, and to all the many other teachers who have so ably helped us.

The staff and personnel of the clinic Shirley Cohen, Evelyn Larson, Bernard Lipsky, James Walker, Michael Rizzo, Murray Spivak, Melvin Kaplan, Seymour Garner, Arthur Rubin and Jaime Estrada—join me in wishing you all success and happiness.

—E. R. TENNANT

ADVANCED READING AND PERCEPTION

The Institute of Advanced Reading and Perception was started in 1948 by Dr. Seid, who was the first optometric educator in the United States to apply accepted visual training techniques to the field of developmental reading. The department was established for the purpose of doing research to validate these techniques and to develop new ones which would be applicable. The department was organized into the Institute for Advanced Reading and Perception in October 1951 under the directorship of Mr. Slade.

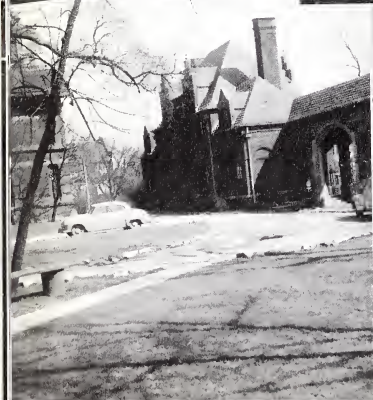

Since the opening of the institute, research projects have been conducted with such concerns as: International Harvester, Standard Oil, Illinois Central Railroad, Carson, Pirie & Scott, Marshall Field, and Spiegel's to determine the validity of these techniques under industrial conditions. These projects were paid for by the companies interested, which marked the first time in the country that industry has financed optometric research.

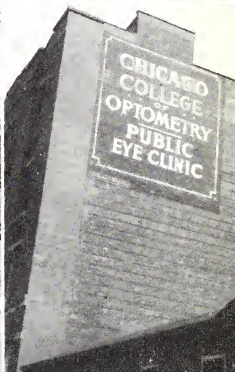

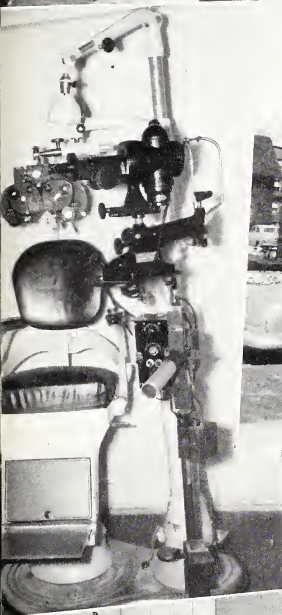

In the last 18 months many students have come to the institute from Wheaton, Moody Bible, McCormack Seminary, University of Illinois, and University of Chicago for the purpose of increasing reading and perception skills.

Articles have been published dealing with research done by personnel at the institute in both optometric and educational publications. The latest was in the "Archives" this past year dealing with the newest techniques in increased efficiency in clerical operations.

Speakers from the institute have presented its techniques before optometric and educational conferences throughout the country.

A survey conducted by the "Optometric Weekly" last year among optometrists indicated 87 were in favor of instituting such a program as part of optometric practice and indicated a desire to learn more about it—conclusive proof of Chicago College of Optometry's foresight in establishing such a program.

SPORTS

All work and no play is certainly not a healthy environment. Here at C.C.O. all the people connected with sports have tried to set up a program of recreation for every season of the year. Some of these activities have been met with great enthusiasm by both students and faculty. Under the guidance of Mr. Carl Stockdale, a well known professional coach, practically every type of sporting activity has been made available to all persons associated with the college. In many of the events tournaments have been organized to test the individual skills of the players. These tournaments have produced a great feeling of satisfaction, gratification, and pleasure, and have introduced fair play and good sportsmanship—one of the few things which cannot be taught in the classroom. Mr. Stockdale should be congratulated for being an example of all those things which sporting activities foster.

BASKETBALL

The blue and gold uniforms of the C.C.O. cagers have been carried onto the courts of many formidable opponents. The 1952-53 season has been a successful and exciting one with such opponents as Fort Sheridan, Wilson Junior College, and Illinois Professional College. The team play of Gerry Silverman, Bill Burton, Jordan Levinson, Pete Landis, Hugh Campbell, Jerry McNamara, Bob Lamonsoff and Howie Silverman provided some exciting moments.

The highlight of every basketball season is always the Varsity-Faculty game which this year was filled with some spectacular play. A fast-moving, fast-breaking varsity was completely at a loss when the Faculty started to put on pressure. Sparked by the play of Drs. "Buckets" Stein, "Killer" Katz, "Bevo" Rubin, "Steady" Stockdale, and some of the fanciest footwork seen on a basketball court in decades by "Goose Tatum" Christakos, the Faculty was never behind in the scoring book. All due credit must be given to the Varsity for their sportsmanship and excellent showing against a team which, with a little help from the officials, have seldom lost a game.

FACULTY

GOLF

During the spring semester of 1952 there was an avid desire among the golf addicts of C.C.O. to prove their prowess on the links. All games were played at the Edgebrook Country Club. These games continued for a period of three weeks, after which the match play was completed. Milton Kobayashi played flawless golf to end up with a 67 after handicap, while Cosimo Paone received a 69. Frank Herschik and Jay Cohen were close behind in third and fourth places. As the players walked off the last green they were met by Mel Kaplan, Student Athletic Director, who presented the champion and runners-up with trophies for their efforts.

SOFTBALL

During the annual outdoor picnic, held at Caldwell woods near the outskirts of the city, the most popular activity appeared to be softball. This game—which uses a 16 inch ball—seemed to be completely foreign to anyone living outside the Chicago area. Despite this handicap, the game was enjoyed by all who participated. The teams paired off as Students versus Faculty, and some fancy fielding and slugging resulted from both sides. The score was lost in oblivion as both teams had some fantastic scoring sprees. Finally, the game was called off because of the approaching darkness, and the only score tallied was two sprained fingers to several sore muscles.

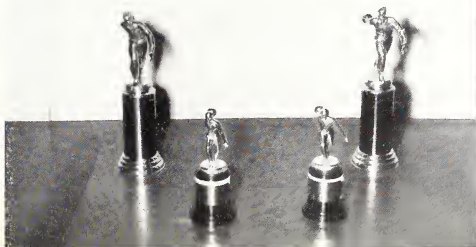

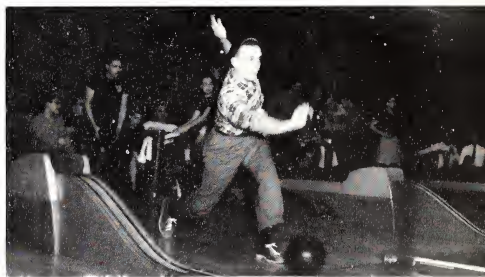

BOWLING

The Bowling League of C.C.O.—after a great year in 1952—has again come up with highly competitive sport between teams of all four of the fraternities, and individual teams of non-fraternity members. Last year's winning team of John Wright, Frank Hershik, Robert Velasco and Carl Stockdale were honored with well deserved trophies at the league banquet held at the Ivanhoe restaurant. Individual prizes were awarded to all those who distinguished themselves throughout the season by high scores, the most outstanding being the single game score of 275 by Robert Nelson.

This year's winning team represents Phi Theta Upsilon with Cosimo Paone, Robert Velasco, John Waataja, and Fred Delay as its members. During the last three weeks of play extreme pressure was placed upon them to try and dislodge them from first place, but they weathered the onslaught and won. They too will be awarded trophies at the league banquet being held at a private club in Chicago. This year's individual prizes were awarded to Gordon Groundwater and John Wright for high series and high game respectively. During the regular season a tournament was held and trophies were awarded to the individuals who achieved high scores for that day. The winners were Gordon Groundwater, John Wright and Alex Smigelski.

DAMES CLUB

Every Optometric college has a Dames' Club, the members of which are the students' wives, and the object of which is "to promote and foster understanding in optometry".

The Dames have been an integral part of school activities since the inception of Chicago College of Optometry, but this year they boast the most impressive record of achievement in their short history. Their sponsor is Dr. Tennant, Clinic Director, who has diligently guided them in their various activities, and without whose help the great success of the club would not have been possible.

During the fall semester they sponsored a series of lectures by faculty members and other Optometric authorities. These lectures were concerned with the various phases of Optometry. Some of the most interesting and enlightening of these talks were given by President Morton Abram, L.L.B., D.O.S.; M.A. Masouka, B.S., R.Ph., O.D., D.O.S.; E. R. Tennant, O. D.; J. C. Copeland, O.D.; J. Brodnax, O.D.; George Jessen, O.D.; Leo Stein, C.P.A.; Robert Sternberg, O.D.; Stanley Dulskey, Ph.D.; and Walter Lewis. At the conclusion of this series of lectures, graduation exercises were held for the group with Dr. Tennant officiating. The deserving members received certificates testifying completion of a course for training as professional office assistants.

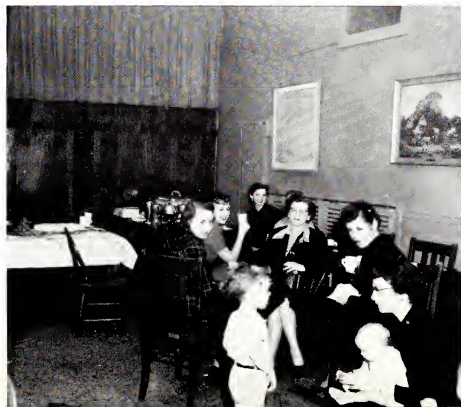

Officers for the fall term were: President, Shirley Boyenga; Vice-President, Marlys Arp; Treasurer, Sylvia Loy; Recording Secretary, Audrey Nicholson; Corresponding Secretary, Florence Hetz.

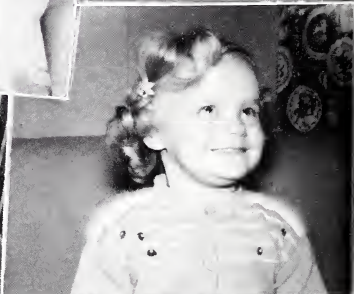

The Spring semester brought a change of officers and a change of program. The members were hostesses at a birthday party for the residents of the Northwest Home for the Aged, and at a picnic for the boys of Lawrence Hall. Other activities included a Christmas Dance, a dinner and puppet show at the Kungsholm Restaurant, an open house tea for new students, bake sales held at the clinic, and a farewell dinner at the Chez Paree honoring the wives of the graduating students.

Officers for the spring term were: President, Anne Seligman; Vice-President, Bernice Lipsky; Treasurer, Penny Patterson; Recording Secretary, Betty Ebberts; Corresponding Secretary; Marilyn Hemes; Reporter, Doris Snyder.

ADVERTISING

E v e n in the era of styled spectacles, very few people want simply "a pair of glasses." What they do want is complete visual comfort. When people see well and without effort they work better, play better and live in a more enjoyable world.

This condition, of course, is brought about by regular professional eye care. Yet even the most competent practitioner seldom, if ever, hears direct praise of his professional accomplishments. The satisfaction of his patients can be measured only by the fact that they return to him for professional service.

At the same time, such a professional man can count on this: satisfied patients do tell their friends. And thus reputation arising out of ability and genuine interest in the patient's problems invariably leads to a successful practice. In this way the refractionist enjoys the economic freedom so necessary if he is to discharge the moral obligation of his profession.

To the Class of '53 . . .

Every year at this time Victory customarily addresses to the members of the graduating class a greeting to welcome them to a great profession.

We look forward each year to this privilege and pleasure.

You who, as scientists, have become so familiar with the physiology of the human eye—as familiar as the schoolboy is with the road to school—can yet learn something new about the eye from the poet who tells us that eyes are the windows of the soul. It's a good thing to bear in mind . . . to remember that a patient is more than just a pair of eyes to be measured and corrected.

To remember that your profession deals with more than eyes . . . with people.

And to remember, therefore, that your professional responsibility extends beyond prescribing and fitting glasses . . . for you are, in every sense specially trusted guardians of those precious windows of the soul.

“CONGRATULATIONS”

You have heard this word many, many times, but it has never meant as much as it does now. It means, when you have passed your state board examination, that you have won the cherished right to affix “O.D.” to your name. It means that you have dedicated your life to the cause of better vision.

If you are to serve the cause to the best of your ability, it means that you will insist on using the finest ophthalmic materials as a complement to your diagnoses and prescriptions.

Why not start right by specifying the frames, mountings, lenses and cases “That like to be compared”? Shuron has been producing ophthalmic products of “Quality Beyond Question” since 1864, and you can be assured of the finest quality and service if you request your independent supplier to use Shuron Browline Frames, Shurmont Mountings, Shuron Widesite Corrected Curve Lenses, Shuron Cases, and many other high style products on all prescriptions.

THE DOORWAY TO FINER YEARBOOKS
BUILDING

"Jahn & Ollier Again"

A familiar and reassuring slogan FAMILIAR...because it has appeared in thousands of the country's finest yearbooks for the past half century.

REASSURING...because those years of specialized experience bring complete service, outstanding quality and dependable delivery to the yearbook staffs with whom we work.

Craftsmanship

HAS BEEN THE KEYNOTE of Rogers yearbooks for forty-five years. And it will continue to be our ideal, because responsibility to see that your publication is well printed is shared by the entire organization.

The Rogers tradition of sincerity and quality has been recognized by many schools as a security to the institution and an inspiration to the staff.

CREDITS

J. Greenlee for the photography
Gingiss Brothers for use of tuxedo jackets
President Abram for his time and cooperation
Mr. S. Rose for his helpful technical information
Mr. Stephens for giving us access to his files
Alberta Yocas for time and effort in a stenographic capacity
And all of the instructors and students for their cooperation, without which the publication of this book would have been impossible.
